

ARTILLERY DUEL ON AISNE BATTLE LINE

ARE SHELLING RHEIMS

German Aeroplanes.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Oct. 7.—With the exception of the left wing of the allied army where there is reason to believe that lively actions are being fought, the great battle front in the western arena of the war may today be described as a "gigantic sniping" engagement in which riflemen have been replaced by batteries of heavy artillery, massed along the heights of the Aisne and the Meuse. These desultory artillery

One result of the present stage of operations has been very appreciably diminished in the casualties. Observations from the front declare that the Allies are not really playing this waiting game, they not only outnumber the Germans, and for this reason are giving their troops rest, while the invaders murder their men constantly in the trenches.

The most important development of the fighting in France is the reported move to be twenty thousand artillery southward through Belgium by way of Liege, Leve and Tournay in the direction of the border. Berlin military critics predicted that the Allies would meet disaster if they stretched their line on the left wing too far. It is believed here that the Germans are now about to rush the enveloping movement, which has been closing around General Von Kluck.

Drop Bombs at Rheims.

A dispatch in the Times from Stenay, France, upon the 11th inst.,

stated that the northwestern suburbs of Rheims are still under German shell damage. The shells apparently are intended for the French battery in position outside the town.

The panic among the inhabitants," the dispatch says, "has been increased through the action of German aeroplanes which are dropping bombs containing a highly explosive substance to destroy the railroad station. The attempt to place bombs in this manner has failed, but 14 were killed by one of the bombs."

Statement From Berlin.

Berlin via Amsterdam and London, Oct. 7.—The following communication was sent out by the headquarter staff of the German army:

"Continuous French outflanking movements against our right wing have extended the battle front until it is now north of Arras. West of Lille and west of Lens (nine miles northeast of Arras), our advance guards are in touch with the enemy's cavalry.

"No decision has been reached in our counter-offensive.

"The situation remains unchanged along the battle front between the Oise and the Meuse, in the vicinity of Verdun and in Alsace Lorraine. "There is no news from Antwerp."

TELLS OF THRILLING TRIP TO NORWAY THIS SUMMER.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Whitewater, Oct. 7.—Mr. and Mrs. Ole Hansen reached Whitewater Monday night after an absence of six months spent in Norway. They started homeward September ninth and were obliged to stay a week in Liverpool until a ship could be made ready to carry the four hundred and more passengers to Montreal. Mr. Hansen says they encountered much sea and many icebergs and the ship's port holes were kept covered at night until they entered the St. Lawrence River. The Hansens have made three trips back to Norway during their thirty years residence in Whitewater, and they are thankful the "scotian" brought them safely to the American shore once again.
Dr. and Mrs. John Dunn returned to Whitewater Friday night.
Word came from Milwaukee on Monday that Mr. and Mrs. Spencer C. Fish are the parents of a fine daughter.
Mrs. L.A. Christensen left Monday

EVANSVILLE CITY COUNCIL
HELD SESSION LAST NIGHT

Evansville, Wisconsin, October 7.—A regular meeting of the city council was called to order at the city hall last night by Mayor Pearsall at 7:30. The present were Aldermen A. J. Babcock, Chapin, Shreve and Winston.

A petition signed Alex Richardson and others, petitioning that the name of Second street be changed to Park avenue, was received and referred to the street and alley committee.

A petition, signed by H. A. Blakeley and others, asking for the construction of a sidewalk at the east entrance to the park, was received and referred to the street and alley committee, who ordered the work constructed.

Ordered by Shreve, seconded by Chapin, that the building ordinance be suspended in this instance and allow Hatfield & Baird to proceed with their building.

A communication received from the Women's Literary club was read and referred to the street and alley committee.

The maintenance bond of George Welch was accepted in lieu of $500 now held by the city treasurer.

An ordinance fixing the width of driveways on three of the streets in the city of Evansville, and providing for property owners parking the streets in front of their lots, was passed.

The street and alley committee, acting as a board of public works, reported that they had completed oiling streets for this season and turned in the balance of $236.95 to the general fund, this being what was left of the fund turned over to them for that purpose.

The treasurer submitted his monthly report, which was ordered placed on file.

Meeting adjourned to Aug. 20.

Entertained.
Ten lady friends of Mrs. Bruce Townsend walked in on her Monday evening, the event being her birthday. A splendid 5:30 dinner was served from the well filled baskets provided by the guests. In the evening all enjoyed a theater party, the tickets being provided by an "unknown friend."

Howard Holloway and Miss Sylvia Elmer of Monroe were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Wallace.

We're Hammering Away
At This Fact

STANDARD is the best tobacco in the world for big, strong manly men. It was put on the market purposely to please this kind of man. We first marketed it fifty years ago; it has been the favorite of men of vim and vigor ever since.

It is pure Kentucky tobacco, carefully and naturally aged for three to five years so as to bring out all its mellow, natural richness and honest sweetness. It is a rich, full-bodied tobacco that thoroughly satisfies a powerful man's tobacco-hunger.

STANDARD
Long Cut Tobacco

Take the case of the blacksmith. When he wants tobacco satisfaction, he cannot get it out of "flat" insipid mixtures. He has got to have a man's size real old natural he-tobacco.

We have the greatest tobacco organization in the world and are in business to stay in business—by giving the best values. STANDARD is only one of our many brands, but like all it is the "highest quality—biggest quantity" of its kind sold.

We tell the big, brawny men of this country that STANDARD is the best tobacco for them on the market and they know they can bank on that statement.

A week's trial of STANDARD will prove it. Smoke a pipeful of STANDARD today.

Sold everywhere in 5-cent packages.

Other sizes, 10c, 15c, 30c and 35c Packages.

Mother No Artist.
Mamma is no natural artist, but she does her best when asked by the youngsters to "draw pictures." The other day, upon little George's demand, she made a sketch of a hen. When finished George regarded it with polite but critical attention. At last, sighing, he requested: "Please write 'Hen' underneath it, mamma. I want it to know where it belongs."

Indictment of Modern Biscuits.
A Topeka editor bewails the passing of the old-fashioned biscuit made of flour, lard, sour cream and salt soda. He says the baking powder biscuit of the present day is a food ranking with the German carp, and as an entertainment ranks only with the green corn dance of the Pottawatomie Indians.

MONUMENT

When you come to select a monument the matter of confidence should enter largely into the transaction. There are poor quality granites on the market and it is just as difficult for the lay man to tell the difference as it would be to tell the difference in cloth or dress goods. This firm has built up a reputation of several years standing of having only the best quality granites and everyone knows that the workmanship we turn out here is unexcelled.

WEATHER FORECAST.

THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

The fact is generally recognized that New York City is the great money center of the United States. The same is Paris and London represent France and England, but Wall street has been so cleverly denominated by muck-rakers and reformers, during the past few years, that the great metropolis has become a by-word to many western people.

When it was announced, a couple of months ago, that the New York Stock Exchange would close indefinitely, no particular significance was attached, in the minds of many people, because they were ignorant of the mission which the exchange performed.

The stock exchange of a country is the great machine for the ultimate measuring of all values, and so long as it is closed, and capital issues are held up, the whole country feels the damaging and retarding effect, whether it knows what the matter is or not.

Commerce is a great complicated system of machinery, one part depending upon another. At the top and connected with all the other parts are the exchanges, and ultimately all the other machinery is dependent for normal operation upon the free working of the machinery of the exchanges.

When this is stopped everything else is strained and obstructed in its workings. Because the exchange is closed and the exchange of securities and cash is restricted almost to paralysis, cities, counties and states have been forced to drop improvements of nearly all kinds, and while some lines are abnormally active due to special war requirements, the demands of manufacturers have reduced their production and cut their payrolls to the quick.

But the barrier to re-opening the exchange is the menace of a great mass of foreign sales threatening to engulf it. And this situation is aggravated a hundred fold by the fact that a very large part of American securities is discredited by the disastrous situation which has been brought upon the railroads. If the railroads of the country were earning ample surpluses, insuring permanent dividends and easy payment of fixed charges, the whole situation would be changed.

Our securities would then be the most attractive in the world, because they would be the issues of highly profitable companies located in the only great country in the world at peace. Such a situation would advance prices materially for these securities and would reduce by hundreds, and probably thousands of millions the amounts which would press for sale on the stock exchange. Every present holder abroad who was not forced to sell would be eager to hold such investments, liable to advance. These European holders are careful students of investment conditions. They would at once realize that our securities on this new basis would be the last things to part with, as they would be far safer in the present situation than money in hand over there could possibly be, or than the securities of any other country.

The remedy for this trouble is in the hands of the interstate commerce commission, the most autocratic body today in America. They have restricted the earning powers of the railroads, especially since 1910, until today the charges, largely by reason of inadequate charges, are many of them, in the hands of receivers, others are facing bankruptcy, and only a few of them are making a successful showing.

As a business proposition the railroads are not making money, and have not been for a long time.

They have been compelled to default within the last few months on obligations equal to half the national debt.

Net operating income of all the railroads declined in one year to June 30, 1914, 120 millions, and no relief is in sight.

There is only one way to save the situation, and this is by a liberal increase in rates.

This can be done promptly and will be amply effectual at once if the increase is large enough.

This situation is realized by congress and by the president, and the latter has recently, in a strong letter, called the attention of the country to the facts.

This is the situation in a nutshell. American securities will be in great demand as soon as the government abandons its policy of persecution.

THE HANDWRITING.

Aimed directly at the candidacy of Francis E. McGovern for the United States senate, the disgruntled republicans and democrats are to form a coalition, an iniquitous bond, whereby sufficient strength can be thrown to Paul Hustung, at all times a "fair-minded democrat," at present choice of democracy for the United States senate to win the election. This candidacy of J. J. Blaine of Boscebel, the man who sold his republican birthright for a mess, a cold mess at that, when he organized the Wilson Republican league, for governor as an independent candidate is but a blind with the main line of attack at McGovern.

McGovern is most objectionable to the average La Follette republican. To the radical shouting, praying hypocrite that repudiates the primary law, repudiates and curses any law that does not suit their individual tastes, he is omre than objectionable, he is obnoxious. They dare not openly campaign against him, but they feel that there are enough conservative republicans who are not enthusiastic over his election, who may not vote for him, so that their nefarious deal with the democrats that in exchange for votes for Blaine, the "fair-minded republican," they will deliver sealed and bonded a certain number of republican votes for Hustung.

It is a surprise that any thinking man, a man who does not wear the collar of servitude to the "Little Boss" or the Davies-Aylward ring, can be blinded by the game, it is as plain as the nose on your face. They do not think they can beat Philip—they know they can not—but they do hope they can defeat McGovern, the regular republican nominee for the United States senate, by trading votes, and that is the man they are after.

Party regularity is thrown to the winds. Men who profess themselves to be republicans will smilingly go out and fight republican nominees that their own selfish ends is realized. There are many in Rock county who will seek to aid the Blaine-Democratic-Bull Moose combination and when defeated will smilingly return to the next republican primary and seek recognition.

They should be branded as were the thieves of France, in olden days, with a badge of dishonor, so that all who read the handwriting is on the wall. The end of such political trickery is in sight. The people are thinking for themselves and all they need is to have their eyes opened, to realize the men who would be their masters and oppress them into servitude while they reap the benefits that may accrue.

McGovern and Philipp are the nominees of the republican party at the recent primary. They are the candidates chosen by vote and they should have the support of every loyal republican, of every business man who seeks to have his axes lessened and by every lover of fair play.

ANOTHER BAD PROVISION.

Along with the rest of the obnoxious laws which the ultra progressives would foister on the state, is the following which puts the judiciary into the hands of scheming politicians. If there is any branch of our state government which should be clear of political influence, and yet they would be placed within the reach of spoilsmen. Vote no on this proposed amendment, which is as follows:

JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 26.
To amend sections 6 and 7 of article VII, of the constitution of the state of Wisconsin, relating to circuit judges.

Whereas, At the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1911, an amendment to the constitution was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment is as follows:

"Resolved by the assembly, the senate concurring, That section 6, article VII, and section 7, article VII, of the constitution be amended to read: Section 6. The legislature may, at its limits, decrease or increase the number of circuits, making them as compact as practicable, and bounding them by county lines, but no such alteration, decrease or increase shall have the effect to remove a judge from office. In case of an increase of the number of circuits, judges shall be elected as provided in this constitution, and receive a salary not less than that herein provided for judges of section 7.

Resolved by the assembly, the senate concurring, That section 6, article VII, and section 7, article VII, of the constitution be amended to read: Section 6. Resolved by the assembly, the senate concurring, That the foregoing proposed amendment to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin be, and the same is hereby agreed to by this legislature.

Note. (If adopted, this amendment will permit the legislature to change the number of judicial circuits and to provide for one or more circuit judges in each circuit, whereas the constitution now requires one judge in each circuit except in Milwaukee county.)

THE PLAIN TRUTH.

Leslie's Weekly says: "Prediction! Big armies for big wars. Big ships for big seas. Big businesses for big country. Big men for big business. Big mouths for big demagogues. Big majorities against big demagogues at every polling place in 1914. Mark the prediction." There is good, sound logic. Remember it when you cast your ballot for the congressmen from this first congressional district. Vote for Henry Allen Cooper to be returned to congress where he is needed and where his influence with the coming republican majority will be a valuable asset to the republican party he has so long, honestly and faithfully served. There have been times of differences between Mr. Cooper and some of his constituents, but at present he is one of the strong men needed in congress and his election is earnestly advocated.

How much has Mexico cost the United States thus far? Even Chairman Fitzgerald, democratic head of the house committee on appropriations, states that a goodly share of the present expensive appropriations has been due to the president's attitude on Mexico and his "watchful waiting policy," and it is certain that today the country is no better off than it was when Huerta was president, and that there is really more genuine danger than has existed before in months. "The lofty, alt'istic ideas which lead to our interference in the affairs of our neighboring republics comes high, but with $100,000,000 of needless war taxes in sight we hope to be able to pay the bill in due time."

Why the taxpayers of the United States should pay for the European war is beyond comprehension. When the income receipts, in valuation, at the ports of entry, are almost as great as before the war commenced this seems stranger still. However, the free trade bug which has bitten the democratic party, is leaving its red welt in depleted pocketbooks the country through to the detriment of business and industry in general. This may explain the need for the great deficiency fund the democratic party finds itself facing in the national treasury.

An exchange explains why the proposed prohibition measure will fail to pass the present session of congress, by stating that it is the most extravagant congress on record and that it must have money to spend. That over $200,000,000 of the nation's revenue comes from the liquor traffic, and that the proposed amendment would wipe this out, and that this is the last thing congress would do.

The interstate commerce commission has done more to depreciate the intrinsic value of the railroad securities of this country than all the labor troubles or European war could possibly have accomplished.

WIDOW'S TAXES—1913-14.

(Specially dedicated to the cause of "Progressive Government.")

Last winter there was groaning. When the collector made his rounds, it was long and deep and mournful. You could tell it by the sounds.

The farmers swore in concert. And the city chaps cursed loud. As they mingled with the crowd.

There were anxious, tear-stained faces. Little more than skin and bones. Who had come to pay their taxes. On their humble little homes.

There were men wrapped in fur garments. Drawing checks for great big sums. Just as if it were but pastime. Paying taxes just for fun.

Soon a woman pressed up closely. To the man who took the dimes. Whispered lowly name and number. And said "Please sir, what are mine?"

"Eighteen ten," came back the answer. Just as if it were all right. "Eighteen ten" was whispered faintly. By the quivering lips so white.

"Why, last year they were but twelve, sir! Even that I thought was high. Now they're nearly twice as big, sir. I can't pay them if I try."

"Will you take the twelve I've got here. Thinking that would be just right? I'll put in one more week a scrubbing. And come back on Friday night."

"Maybe you're mistaken, Mister. Look your books clear through again. My old shanty is not worth more than it was in nineteen ten."

Surely they can't raise my taxes. When my house remains the same? Shingles off, and windows broken. Rags in place of window panes?

Back she drew, her wan face moist.

ened. With the tears that o'er it flowed; Tott'ring toward the door she entered. Weighted with that awful load.

EMMA BRUHN WEDS FRED RATZLAFF, TUESDAY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Edgerton, Oct. 7.—At 7 o'clock last evening Miss Emma Bruhn and Fred Ratzlaff were united in marriage by Rev. Spillman in the German Lutheran church, the ring service being used. They were attended by Miss Bettie Bruhn, the bride's sister, and George Daliman.

Immediately after the ceremony they repaired to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bruhn, where a delicious wedding repast was served, to the twenty five relatives present. The house was beautifully decorated with yellow dahlia and smilax.

The bride was dressed in white messaline and carried a shower bouquet of Lillies of the Valley. The bridesmaid was also dressed in white silk and wore a corsage bouquet of yellow roses.

For the present Mr. and Mrs. Ratzlaff will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bruhn. The bride is a popular young lady and successful teacher. The groom is a member of Ratzlaff Bros. firm and the young couple have many friends who wish them success.

Miss Mary Hain only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hain and Sartoris Humphrey went to Madison today and were united in marriage by Rev. Rouche of the First M. E. church. From there they will go to Portage to visit the bride's brother, Frank Hain and family, for a few days. On their return they will go to house-keeping in the home recently purchased by the groom in the Third ward.

AUTOMOBILE HAS DOBBIN ON RUN.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Olympia, Wash., Oct. 7.—The automobile dealt poor old Dobbin a terrible blow during the last year in the state of Washington, according to county assessors returns to the secretary of state.

While the machines increased 50% in number, the number of horses decreased 1,000. There are now 15,000 automobiles in the state and 256,876 horses.

"Goodness Gracious" is a three-reel Vitaphone burlesque which is also called "Movies as They Should Be." The second title exactly explains the picture, for its 3,000 feet are filled with mirth-provoking absurdities of characterization, acting and situations. It is screamingly funny from the very start, and the mock seriousness of the characters conclusively shows how much fun may be extracted from an ordinary weird melodrama, providing it is handled by competent comedians who understand how to produce laughs.

The cast of comedians portraying "Goodness Gracious" includes Sidney Drew, Clara Kimball Young, James Lackaye, Ned Finley, Etienne Girardot and Kate Price. The production was staged by James Young, so it can be readily realized that a comedy of exceptional merit would result.

Clara's father becomes a bankrupt and commits suicide. The villain seizes his property and tries to ensnare Clara. She escapes and gets a position as a stenographer with "Little" Jim Lackaye. His son returns from college, falls in love with Clara, marries her and both are thrown out in ten barrels of torn paper which represents snow. Then the villain kills Jim Lackaye. Sidney Drew is arrested for the crime, and Clara, his trusting wife, turns into a female Sherlock Holmes, apprehends the murderer, coaxes him to jail, and all ends happily. A perfectly silly story, isn't it? Yet it is on this groundwork that the funniest farce-comedy in flimdom was built.

Sidney Drew's mock heroics permit him to be seen at his best. Clara Kimball Young fairly revels in the part of the daughter, and Ned Finley is screamingly funny as the assisted villain. James Lackaye portrays Drew's father in his usual ponderous style, and Girardot's scene, in which he commits suicide, constitutes the apex of absurdity. There is no sense to this picture, and it was never intended that there should be any. It is simply three reels of amusing and frivolous absurdities, constructed to arouse the risibilities of lovers of fun.

"Goodness Gracious," exactly as it was performed for 250 consecutive performances to capacity houses at the Vitaphone Theatre, New York City, will be presented at the Majestic Saturday.

POSSE SCOURS COUNTY FOR ESCAPED CONVICT

MAN ANSWERING DESCRIPTION OF KABAT SEEN NEAR THE HENNING FARM.

SEEN ON RACINE ROAD?

Sheriff With Farmers Search Woods and Field Without Result for Desperate Fugitive.

Sheriff S. C. Whipple this morning received a telephone message from a farm near this city on Racine road, that a man answering to the description of Wenzel Kabat, the life prisoner who escaped from the state prison at Waupun, was seen by several farmers walking by the roadside. The residents, after reading the convict's description in the Gazette, attempted to engage the stranger who came down the road early in the morning, in conversation, which would lead to his positive identity. The stranger refused to converse but turned down the road into the woods. A phone call brought Sheriff Whipple to the Henning farm and a posse was organized to search the fields and woods.

Until noon the sheriff and farmers scoured the woods without results. His tracks showed plainly in the dusty road but no trace could be found in the grass by the roadside. It was the intention of the authorities to bring the English bloodhound hounds on the scent, but the noonday rain spoiled this plan. If the stranger is Kabat, people are warned that he is a desperate criminal serving a life term for the murder of a rich farmer by the name of Kenneth Carthy, near Kaukauna, Wis., five years ago. Kabat slew the man and then turned the remains. Upon his conviction he swore to kill the judge and district attorney who brought about his life term for the crime. He is probably armed for Warden Woodward is certain the prisoner had a waiting automobile. Trace is also said to have been gained on the "lifer" near Milwaukee where it was thought he might possibly make his way to this city.

The Janesville police have been furnished with an accurate description of the convict having his photograph and all trains, both freight and passenger, are being closely watched. Any trace of the man should at once be phoned to Sheriff S. C. Whipple, the county jail, who has prepared to make a quick trip by auto to any part of the county.

Kabat, thirty-five years of age, five feet nine inches in height, weighs about 165 pounds. He has blue eyes, is of a medium build, has a prominent nose, broad forehead, a number of teeth are gold-capped. Kabat's escape was carefully planned for he saved through the bars of his cell, leaving a dummy in his bed with his coat and hat on the wall. His escape was effected while the guards were on the watch of the cells distributing tobacco down the long line of cells. The saved-off pieces of the cell were carefully replaced and not noticed for an hour after Kabat had escaped. When the bars fell to the floor.

A wooden key was used to escape out of the cell room letting Kabat out into the prison yard. The convict scaled twenty-foot concrete wall to the waiting auto. It is barely possible Kabat is being harbored by criminal friends in Chicago, being given shelter by a convict recently released from Waupun, if the stranger seen by Mr. Henning is not the fugitive.

CANDIDATES ASKED TO STATE POSITION

CANVASS OF ALL CANDIDATES FOR LEGISLATURE MADE BY HOME RULE LEAGUE.

QUESTIONS SUBMITTED

Letters Urge Comment on League's Stand With Reference to Abolition of Certain Commissions.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Oct. 6.—Letters have been sent out by the Home Rule and Taxpayers' League to all candidates for legislative offices at the coming election, asking them to answer questions with reference to their stand on the important issues of the campaign in Wisconsin. The letters are signed by Charles E. Pierce, of Janesville, president of the league. Some of the replies which have been received thus far are amusing examples of attempts at fence-straddling and are veritable cryogenics as far as the statement of definite facts and opinions are concerned.

Nine specific questions are submitted to the candidates. The document is so framed as to secure a referendum vote from the candidates upon a statement of how they stand on legislative matters. Among the things for which the league is working are: The abolition of the tax commission, the highway commission, the public affairs, the legislative reference bureau and "many more of those special and state agencies, for the reason that their services are not necessary to the proper management of state affairs."

It declares that there is no excuse for an increase of taxation from a year to year of over $14,000,000 a year over the past decade.

It believes that many of the commissions and boards have been vested with power which practically destroys local self-government, and the people have been wronged by the exercise of the right and privilege of controlling, managing and directing their own business affairs.

The league demands the repeal of the primary election law and the restoration to the people of the right to meet in conventions to discuss public policy and to adopt party platforms and to nominate candidates for office.

The league demands the rejection of amendments proposed to the constitution.

It asks for stricter economy at the University of Wisconsin and for the abolition of the boards of university and normal school regents and the establishment of one small board to perform the duties of both.

The league is pledged to the repeal of the law providing for the appointment of a state game warden and deputies and declares that these duties should be performed by sheriffs, constables and other police officers of the state at little or no expense to the people.

The last question proposed by the league asks whether the candidate is in favor of the enactment of a law which will prohibit a state official or employee from drawing compensation from more than one public fund in a single year.

Answers to the mere answers to the questions proposed by the league in its circular invites comment from candidates on each of these legislative proposals.

Members of the league are found in large numbers in all parts of the state, writes Mr. Pierce to the candidates. "We desire to get your views on the principles of the league in your district. We ask you to kindly indicate your position in reference to the principles of the league."

An immediate answer to the question is asked by Mr. Pierce, who gives the address of the league as "Room 1, Marston Block, Madison, Wis."

An examination of the records of the office of the secretary of state makes the county clerk of Dane county fail to show that this organization has filed expense statements.

C. & N. W. Members of Local No. 542, International Association of Machinists, are making arrangements for their third annual ball. It will be held on Halloween eve, October 30, at Assembly hall, J. Many Wisconsin Crops Harvested Green Will Benefit by Warm and Fair October.

Madison, Wis., October 7.—Packers of tobacco in this vicinity are awaiting with considerable interest the results of the curing of the crop. Some of it undoubtedly has been harvested a little green on account of injury expected from possible frost. Provided, however, the weather is warm and fair, however, the quality of the late harvested crop probably will be very good. In July the crop outlook was poor on account of the drought, the effect was aggravated by a general recurrence of the root-rot disease. Plants having a reduced root system were unable to withstand the drought as completely as other crops. However, the late summer rains, however, the crops are checked fields made a remarkable showing and as a result there is a considerable amount of large-sized tobacco in the state at the present time, although it is harvested on an average of a week or ten days later than usual.

Wisconsin grows about 40,000 acres of tobacco the value of which to the growers is from $6,000,000 to $7,000,000 annually. Dane, Rock and Vernon counties produce most of the crop.

LOCAL BOWLERS DEFEAT BELOIT TEN PIN MEN

Miller's All Stars downed Messner's Colts of Beloit in the latest bowling match in this city at Miller's bowling alley, defeating the invaders by 184 points. The Janesville artists rolled a stellar game considering it is the first match their lowest game being an even eighth hundred. Merrick scored high man in his last inning with 219 which helped swell the grand total for the game to 868.

CANDIDATES ASKED TO STATE POSITION

CANVASS OF ALL CANDIDATES FOR LEGISLATURE MADE BY HOME RULE LEAGUE.

QUESTIONS SUBMITTED

Letters Urge Comment on League's Stand With Reference to Abolition of Certain Commissions.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Oct. 6.—Letters have been sent out by the Home Rule and Taxpayers' League to all candidates for legislative offices at the coming election, asking them to answer questions with reference to their stand on the important issues of the campaign in Wisconsin. The letters are signed by Charles E. Pierce, of Janesville, president of the league. Some of the replies which have been received thus far are amusing examples of attempts at fence-straddling and are veritable cryogenics as far as the statement of definite facts and opinions are concerned.

Nine specific questions are submitted to the candidates. The document is so framed as to secure a referendum vote from the candidates upon a statement of how they stand on legislative matters. Among the things for which the league is working are: The abolition of the tax commission, the highway commission, the public affairs, the legislative reference bureau and "many more of those special and state agencies, for the reason that their services are not necessary to the proper management of state affairs."

It declares that there is no excuse for an increase of taxation from a year to year of over $14,000,000 a year over the past decade.

It believes that many of the commissions and boards have been vested with power which practically destroys local self-government, and the people have been wronged by the exercise of the right and privilege of controlling, managing and directing their own business affairs.

The league demands the repeal of the primary election law and the restoration to the people of the right to meet in conventions to discuss public policy and to adopt party platforms and to nominate candidates for office.

The league demands the rejection of amendments proposed to the constitution.

It asks for stricter economy at the University of Wisconsin and for the abolition of the boards of university and normal school regents and the establishment of one small board to perform the duties of both.

The league is pledged to the repeal of the law providing for the appointment of a state game warden and deputies and declares that these duties should be performed by sheriffs, constables and other police officers of the state at little or no expense to the people.

The last question proposed by the league asks whether the candidate is in favor of the enactment of a law which will prohibit a state official or employee from drawing compensation from more than one public fund in a single year.

Answers to the mere answers to the questions proposed by the league in its circular invites comment from candidates on each of these legislative proposals.

Members of the league are found in large numbers in all parts of the state, writes Mr. Pierce to the candidates. "We desire to get your views on the principles of the league in your district. We ask you to kindly indicate your position in reference to the principles of the league."

An immediate answer to the question is asked by Mr. Pierce, who gives the address of the league as "Room 1, Marston Block, Madison, Wis."

An examination of the records of the office of the secretary of state makes the county clerk of Dane county fail to show that this organization has filed expense statements.

C. & N. W. Members of Local No. 542, International Association of Machinists, are making arrangements for their third annual ball. It will be held on Halloween eve, October 30, at Assembly hall, J. A new boiler for the heating plant at the down town depot has recently been installed.

Many Wisconsin Crops Harvested Green Will Benefit by Warm and Fair October.

Madison, Wis., October 7.—Packers of tobacco in this vicinity are awaiting with considerable interest the results of the curing of the crop. Some of it undoubtedly has been harvested a little green on account of injury expected from possible frost. Provided, however, the weather is warm and fair, however, the quality of the late harvested crop probably will be very good. In July the crop outlook was poor on account of the drought, the effect was aggravated by a general recurrence of the root-rot disease. Plants having a reduced root system were unable to withstand the drought as completely as other crops. However, the late summer rains, however, the crops are checked fields made a remarkable showing and as a result there is a considerable amount of large-sized tobacco in the state at the present time, although it is harvested on an average of a week or ten days later than usual.

Wisconsin grows about 40,000 acres of tobacco the value of which to the growers is from $6,000,000 to $7,000,000 annually. Dane, Rock and Vernon counties produce most

The Last Shot

One of the Grays, his cheek bearing the mark of a boot heel, raised himself, and in defiance and the satisfaction of the thought to his bruises and humiliation, pointing his finger at Feller, Marta heard him say:

"You there, in your straw hat and blue blouse, they've seen you—a man fighting and not in uniform! If they catch you it will be a drumhead and a firing squad at dawn!"

"That's so!" replied Feller gravely. "But they'll have to make a better job of it than you fellows did if they're going to—"

He turned away abruptly but did not move far. His shoulders relaxed into the gardener's stoop, and he pulled his hat down over his eyes and lowered his head as if to hide his face. He was thus standing, inert, when a division staff-officer galloped into the grounds.

"Where is Major Dellarme?"

When he saw Dellarme's still body he dismounted and in a tide of feeling which, for the moment, submerged all thought of the machine, stood, head bowed and cap off, looking down at Dellarme's face.

"I was very fond of him! He was at school when I was teaching there. But a good death—a soldier's death!" he said. "I'll write to his mother myself." Then the voice of the machine spoke. "Who is in command?"

"I am, sir!" said the callow lieutenant.

"You, there, in your straw hat and blue blouse."

"But the men of the company spoke."

"Bert Stransky!" they roared.

It was not according to military etiquette, but military etiquette meant nothing to them now. They were above it in veteran superiority.

"Where's Stransky?" demanded the staff-officer.

"You're looking at him!" replied Stransky with a benign grin.

Seeing that Stransky was only a private, the officer frowned at the anomaly when a lieutenant was present, then smiled in a way that accorded the company parliamentary rights, which he thought that they had fully earned.

"Yes, and he gets one of those iron crosses!" put in Tom Fragin.

"Yes—the first cross for Bert of the Reds!"

"And we'll let him make a dozen anarchist speeches a day!"

"Yes, yes!" roared the company.

"The axes have it!" the officer announced cheerfully. He lifted his cap to Marta. With tender regard and grave reverence for that company, he took extreme care with his next remark lest a set of men of such dynamic spirit might repulse him as an invader. "The lieutenant is in command for the present, according to regulations," he proceeded. "You will retire immediately to positions 48 and 49 A—J by the castle road. You have done your part. Tonight you sleep and tomorrow you rest."

"Sleep! Rest! Where had they heard those words before? Oh, yes, in a distant day before they went to war! Sleep and rest! Better far than an iron cross for every man in the company! They could go now with something warmer in their hearts than consciousness of duty well done; but this time they need not go until their dead as well as their wounded were removed."

Feller started to pass around the corner of the house; he was confronted by Marta, who had come to the end of the veranda. There, within hearing of the soldiers, the dialogue that followed was low-toned, and it was swift and palpitant with repressed emotion.

"Mr. Feller, I saw you at the automatic. I heard what the wounded private of the Grays said to you and realized how true it was."

"He is a prisoner. He cannot tell."

"I feel that I have no right to let you go to your death by a firing squad," she interrupted hurriedly, "and I shall not! For I decide now not to allow the telephone to remain!"

"I—he looked around at the automatic ravenously and fearfully—"

"It is all simply arranged. There is time for me to use the telephone before the Grays arrive. I shall tell Lanny why you took charge of the gun."

"I've changed my mind! Exit gardener! Enter gunner! I'm going with you!" he cried in a jubilant voice that arrested the attention of every one on the grounds.

CHAPTER XIII.

From Brown to Gray.

"You, Marta—you are still there!" Lanstron exclaimed in alarm when he heard her voice over the tunnel telephone. "But safe!" he added in relief. "Thank God for that! It's a mighty load off my mind. And your mother?"

"Safe, too."

"Well, you're through the worst of it. There won't be any more fighting around the house, and certainly Westering will be courteous. But where is Gustave?"

"Gone!" he repeated dismally.

"Wait until you hear how he went," Marta said. With all the vividness of her impressions, a partisan for the moment of him and Dellarme, she sketched Feller's part with the automatic.

As he listened, Lanstron's spirit was twenty again.

"I can see him," he said. "It was a full breath of fresh air to the lungs of a suffocating man. I—"

Marta was off in interruption in the full tide of an appeal.

"You must—I promised—you must let him have the uniform again!" she begged. "You must let him keep his automatic. To take it away would be like separating mother and child; like separating Minna from Clarissa Eileen."

"Better than an automatic—a battery of guns!" replied Lanstron. "This is where I will use any influence I have with Partow for all it is worth. Yes, and he shall have the iron cross. It is for such deeds as his that the iron cross was meant."

"Thank you," she said. "It's worth something to make a man as happy as you will make him. Yes, you are real flesh and blood to do this, Lanny."

Her point won with surprising ease, when she had feared that military form and law could not be circumvented, she leaned against the wall in reaction. For twenty-four hours she had been without sleep. The interest of her appeal for Feller had kept up her strength after the excitement of the fight for the redoubt was over. Now there seemed nothing left to do.

"That's fine of you, Lanny!" she said. "You've taken it like a good stoic, this loss of your thousandth chance. You really believed in it, didn't you?"

"Forgotten already, like the many other thousandth chances that have failed," he replied cheerfully. "One of the virtues of Partow's steel automatics is that, being fearless as well as passionless, they never cry over spilt milk. And now, he went on soberly, "we must be saying good-by."

"Good-by, Lanny? Why, what do you mean?" She was startled.

"Till the war is over," he said, "and—"

"Remember!"

"By George!" he said, "I don't remember."

"I don't know what you mean," he said, "but I'll be there when you get back."

"I'll be there when you get back," he said, "but I'll be there when you get back."

"I'll be there when you get back," he said, "but I'll be there when you get back."

"I'll be there when you get back," he said, "but I'll be there when you get back."

THE WORLD SET FREE

EUROPE'S ARMAGEDDON AND THE LAST WAR.

By H. G. WELLS.

Copyright, 1914, by H. G. Wells.

"I have been reading some old papers lately. It is wonderful how our fathers bore themselves toward science. They hated it. They feared it. They permitted a few scientific men to exist and work—a pitiful handful. 'Don't find out anything about us,' they said to them; 'don't indict vision upon us; spare our little ways of life from the fearful shaft of understanding. But do tricks for us, little limited tricks. Give us cheap lighting. And cure us of certain disagreeable things—cure us of cancer, cure us of consumption, cure our colds and relieve us after repelation.' We have changed all that. Science is no longer our servant. We know it for something greater than our little individual selves. It is the awakening mind of the race and in a little while—in a little while—I wish, indeed, I could watch for that little while now that the curtain has risen.

"While I lie here they are clearing up what is left of the bombs in London," he said. "Then they are going to repair the ruins and make it all as like as possible to its former condition before the bombs fell. Perhaps they will dig out the old house in St. John's wood to which my father went after his expulsion from Russia. That London of my memories seems to me like a place in another world. For you younger people it must seem like a place that could never have existed."

"Is there much left standing?" asked Edith Haydon.

"Square miles that are scarcely shaken in the south and northwest, they say, and most of the bridges and large areas of dock, Westminster, which held most of the government offices, suffered badly from the small bomb that destroyed the parliament; there are very few traces of the old thoroughfare of Whitehall or the government region thereabout, but there are plentiful drawings to scale of its buildings, and the great hole in the east of London scarcely matters. That was a poor district and very like the north and the south. It will be possible to reconstruct most of it. It is wanted. Already it becomes difficult to recall the old time—even for us who saw it."

"It seems very distant to me," said the girl.

"It was an unwholesome world," reflected Karenin. "I seem to remember everybody about my childhood as if they were ill. They were ill. They were sick with confusion. Everybody was anxious about money, and everybody was doing uncongenial things. They ate a queer mixture of foods, either too much or too little, and at odd hours. One sees how ill they were by their advertisements. All this new region of London they are opening up now is plastered with advertisements of pills. Everybody must have been taking pills. In one of the hotel rooms in the Strand they have found the luggage of a lady covered up by falling rubble and unburnt, and she was equipped with nine different sorts of pill and tablet. The pill carrying age followed the weapon carrying age. They are equally strange to us. People's skins must have been in a vile state. Very few people were properly washed; they carried the filth of months on their clothes. All the clothes they wore were old clothes. Our way of pulping our clothes again after a week or so of wear would have seemed fantastic to them. Their clothing hardly bears thinking about. And the congestion of them! Everybody was jostling against everybody in those awful towns—in an apron. People were run over and crushed by the hundred. Every year in London the cars and omnibuses alone killed or disabled 20,000 people. In Paris it was worse. People used to fall dead for want of air in the crowded ways. The irritation of London, internal and external, must have been maddening. It was a maddened world. It is like thinking of a sick child. One has the same effect of feverish urgencies and acute irrational disappointments."

"All history," he said, "is a record of a childhood."

"And yet not exactly a childhood. There is something clean and keen about even a sick child—and something touching. But so much of the old time makes one angry. So much they did seem grossly stupid, obstinately, outrageously stupid, which is the very essence of being fresh and young."

"I was reading only the other day about Bismarck, that hero of nineteenth century politics, that sequel to Napoleon, that god of blood and iron. I looked at his portrait, a heavy, almost froggish face, with projecting eyes and a thick mustache to hide a poor mouth. He aimed at nothing but Germany—Germany emphasized, indurated, enlarged; Germany and his class in Germany. Beyond that he had no ideas. He was inaccessible to ideas. His mind never rose for a recorded instant above a bumpkin's elaborate cunning. And he was the most influential man in the world—in the whole world. No man ever left so deep a mark on it, because everywhere there were gross men to resonate to the heavy notes he emitted. He trampled on 10,000 lovely things, and a kind of malice in these louts made it pleasant to them to see him trample. No, he was no child. The dull national aggressiveness he stood for, no childishness. Childhood is promise. He was survival."

"All Europe offered its children to him, it sacrificed education, art, happiness and all its hopes of future welfare to follow the clatter of his saber. The monstrous worship of that old man's blood and iron passed all round the earth, until the atomic bombs burst our way to freedom again."

"One thinks of him now as one thinks of the megatherium," said one of the young men.

"From first to last mankind made 3,000,000 big guns and 100,000 complicated great ships for no other purpose but war."

"Were there no sane men in those days?" asked the young man, "to stand against that idleness?"

"In a state of despair," said Edith Haydon.

"He is so far off—and there are men alive still who were alive when Bismarck died," said the young man.

"And yet it may be I am unjust to Bismarck," said Karenin, following his own thought. "You see, men belong to their own age. We stand upon a common stock of thought, and we fancy we stand upon the ground. I met a pleasant man the other day, a Maori, whose great-grandfather was a cannibal. It chanced he had a dagger-type of the old Maori, and the two were marvelously alike. One felt that a little juggling with time and either might have been the other. People are cruel and stupid in a stupid age who might be gentle and splendid in a gracious one. The world also has its moods. Think of the mental food of Bismarck's childhood—the humiliations of Napoleon's victories, the crowded, crowding victory of the Battle of the Nations. Everybody in those days, wise or foolish, believed that the division of the world under a multitude of governments was inevitable and that it was going on for thousands of years more. It was inevitable until it was impossible. Any one who had denied the inevitability publicly would have been counted—oh, a silly fellow! Old Bismarck was only just a little forbore on the lines of the accepted ideas. That is all. He thought that since there had to be national governments he would make one that was strong at home and invincible abroad. Because he had fed with a kind of rough appetite upon what we can see now were very stupid ideas, that does not make him a stupid man. We've had advantages; we've had unity and collectivism blasted into our brains. Where should we be now but for the grace of science? I should have been an embittered, spiteful, downtrodden member of the Russian intelligencia, a conspirator, a prisoner or an assassin. You, my dear, would have been breaking dingy windows as a suffragette."

"Never!" said Edith stoutly.

For a time the talk broke into humorous personalities, and the young people gazed at each other across the smiling old administrator, and then presently one of the young scientific men gave things a new turn. He spoke like one who was full to the brim.

"You know, sir, I've a fancy—it is hard to prove such things—that civilization was very near disaster when the atomic bombs came banging into it; that if there had been no Holstein and no induced radio activity the world would have smashed—much as it did. Only instead of its being a smash that opened a way to better things it might have been a smash without a recovery. It is part of my business to understand economics, and from that point of view the century before Holstein was just a hundred years' crescendo of waste. Only the extreme individualism of that period, only its utter want of any collective understanding or purpose, can explain that waste. Mankind used up material—insanely. They had got through three-quarters of all the coal in the planet; they had used up most of the oil; they had swept away their forests, and they were running short of tin and copper. Their wheat areas were getting weary and populous, and many of the big towns had so lowered the water level of their available hills that they suffered a drought every summer. The whole system was rushing toward bankruptcy. And they were spending every year vaster and vaster amounts of power and energy upon military preparations and continually expanding the debt of industry to capital. The system was already staggering

"You know, sir, I've a fancy—it is hard to prove such things—that civilization was very near disaster when the atomic bombs came banging into it; that if there had been no Holstein and no induced radio activity the world would have smashed—much as it did. Only instead of its being a smash that opened a way to better things it might have been a smash without a recovery. It is part of my business to understand economics, and from that point of view the century before Holstein was just a hundred years' crescendo of waste. Only the extreme individualism of that period, only its utter want of any collective understanding or purpose, can explain that waste. Mankind used up material—insanely. They had got through three-quarters of all the coal in the planet; they had used up most of the oil; they had swept away their forests, and they were running short of tin and copper. Their wheat areas were getting weary and populous, and many of the big towns had so lowered the water level of their available hills that they suffered a drought every summer. The whole system was rushing toward bankruptcy. And they were spending every year vaster and vaster amounts of power and energy upon military preparations and continually expanding the debt of industry to capital. The system was already staggering

GAS, HEARTBURN, INDIGESTION OR A SICK STOMACH

"Pape's Diapiesin" ends all stomach distress in five minutes.

Time it! Pape's Diapiesin will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach surely within five minutes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your pharmacist a fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapiesin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, no fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, no nausea, no indigestion, no dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapiesin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large fifty-cent cases contain enough "Pape's Diapiesin" to keep the entire family free from stomach disorders and indigestion for many months. It belongs in your home.

KEEP YOUR CHILDREN STRONG

Some children catch one ailment after another, have colds after colds, while other children are seldom sick. If your children are pale or frail, if they catch colds easily, lack ambition or are backward in school, they need SCOTT'S EMULSION which is rich in the food elements to create good blood to strengthen their bodies and brains—SCOTT'S EMULSION is free from alcohol or habit forming drugs.

U. P. SNOOD HILD A PROFITABLE CONVENTION

U. P. SNOOD HILD A PROFITABLE CONVENTION

Rock Prairie, Oct. 5.—The Synod of Illinois held a very interesting and profitable meeting at the U. P. church last week. Though not all who had sent in their names beforehand appeared, still the attendance was very good. To the people of the congregation the most interesting announcement was that of the coming wedding of the pastor, Rev. C. Y. Love, to Miss Hazel Smith of Newcastle, Pa.

Good use was made of the new basement at the church during the synod. Contrary to what some thought it possible that the work would be completed this week. A "bee" will be held at the church Thursday, Oct. 8, at 8 a. m. for the purpose of completing the grading around the building. A good attendance is desired by the building committee. The new gas plant, the installation of which was completed a week ago Monday, worked very satisfactorily during the week.

The Y. M. C. A. group met last Friday evening at the home of George McFarlan to finish up the year's business and make plans for the beginning of this year's meetings. The Woman's Missionary society will meet Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 7, at the home of Mrs. R. W. Lamb. Rev. John Ferguson of Monmouth, Ill., preached morning and evening last Sunday at the U. P. church.

Mrs. J. C. Wixom is sick with typhoid fever. Among those who spent the weekend at home were Miss Grace McLaughlin, Normal; Miss Mary McLaughlin, Walworth; and Miss Florence McLaughlin, Evansville. Mrs. James Caldwell returned to her home on Monday from the hospital in Janesville. Mrs. Walter Fisher of Janesville visited here last week.

MT. PLEASANT

Mount Pleasant, Oct. 6.—Vincent Murray has gone to Aaks, North Dakota, for a few weeks, visiting relatives and friends.

Miss Ella Moore has been visiting in this neighborhood. We are glad to hear that Miss Nellie Connors is able to come home very much improved in health. The town board is working and grading near schoolhouse, which will be a great improvement when finished.

SOUTH MAGNOLIA

South Magnolia, Oct. 5.—Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hagerman and family spent Sunday with friends in Evansville. Mr. J. Harper entertained Mrs. J. Mitchell, Mrs. Arthur Miller and Misses Ina Van Slike and Janet Smith Friday afternoon. Mrs. Will Nyman was an Evansville visitor Monday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Knudson entertained relatives Sunday. Mrs. J. Walters is visiting relatives in Michigan.

SOUTH FULTON

South Fulton, Oct. 6.—Lizzie Thompson spent the last of the week with Carrie Thompson. The L. A. S. will meet with Mrs. Clark Kidder Thursday forenoon. Everyone cordially invited. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stark and family spent Sunday with relatives near Edgerton.

Mr. and Mrs. James Thompson spent the last of the week with the former's cousin, George Gendle, and the latter's brother, George Bancroft, of Rock Prairie.

Mrs. and Mrs. Ross Keller and family drove to Brodhead Sunday and stayed over Sunday with relatives.

Agricultural and Garden Dept. ALLEN B. WEST, Director.

In this department Professor West will answer all questions on agricultural and garden matters each Saturday. As your interest in the department develops, a more frequent insertion of the queries and answers will be made. Address all communications signed with your name, to the Agricultural Department, Gazette. Your name will be withheld, if desired. If personal answer is also desired, enclose self addressed stamped envelope.

Inquiry has been made by a farmer as to whether there is any way in which he can have a soil survey of his farm so that he may know what fertilizer the land needs and how much. This question was filled out and addressed to A. B. West, Department of Soils, College of Agriculture, Madison, Wisconsin. The accompanying blank should be used to make application.

Mr. Allen B. West, Madison, Wis.—Dear Sir: I have yours of the 25th. The survey of Milton town in connection with the state soil survey was made this year in advance of the remainder of the county, so that it will not be possible to have a printed report of the entire county for a time, but we shall probably be able to give those who are especially interested in it a preliminary report on the examination of Milton town which Mr. Conroy made this year. If you and your neighbors wish a more complete examination of their farms that could be done under the provisions of the state soils laboratory and making of the workings of which I am enclosing with this. Very truly yours,

A. R. WHITSON.

The past legislature established a state soils laboratory in connection with the department of soils of the college of agriculture. In the law made for the examination of land and the analysis for private parties, work which the college has heretofore not been in position to do. This provision will give opportunity for the determination of the composition of soils on individual farms and for the making of till plans for increasing their fertility and for the adaptation of the crops to the character of the soil.

The charges made for this work are given in the accompanying sheet, and include those for the field examination, which the department is required to make, and for the analysis. The charges are of course, in addition to the actual cost of the work, the difference being made up by a direct appropriation of two thousand ($2,000) a year for the partial support of the laboratory and the necessary traveling expenses in examining fields and collecting samples. Persons wishing this service should bear in mind and work should be done so that ordinarily this should be done in the fall, but for the development of the plans for the immediate application of fertilizers during the present year along.

It will be seen that the law provides (1) for a field examination of the necessary analysis of the soils, and (2) when five or more unite a second visit to the department for the purpose of explaining fully the results of the analyses and working out the plans for the farmers or owners' plans for the

When your head aches you simply must have relief or you will go wild. It's needless to suffer when you can take a remedy like Dr. James' Headache Powders and relieve the pain and neuralgia at once. Send someone to the drug store now for a dime package of Dr. James' Headache Powders. Don't suffer. In a few moments you will feel fine, headache gone—no more neuralgia pain.

So many people suffer from weak, inactive sluggish kidneys, and don't know what ails them. All tired out and miserable—run down and nervous—sleep poorly and have no appetite—pain in back and sides—swollen ankles and joints—bladder weaknesses—that's kidney trouble. You need the medicine that stops the cause of your trouble.

That's exactly what FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS do. They are to be and strengthening, build up your kidneys, reduce swelling, make you feel fit, active and energetic again. They are a wonder to those using them. Try them yourself. Contain no habit forming drugs. Do not accept a substitute.

Best Laxative For Children

When your baby is cross and fretful instead of the happy, laughing little dear you are accustomed to, in all probability the digestion has become deranged and the bowels need attention. Give it a mild laxative, dispel the irritability and bring back the happy content of babyhood.

The very best laxative for children is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, because it contains no opiate or narcotic drug, is pleasant tasting and acts gently, but surely, without griping or other distress.

Druggists sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at fifty cents and one dollar bottles. For a free trial bottle write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 451 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.
